

JEALOUS HUSBAND SHOOTS TWICE MAN WHO WAS NEAR WIFE

Victim Just Happened Along
as Calamango Alighted
From Street Car.

Charles Shreyer, twenty-seven, of No. 504 Flushing Avenue, Astoria, is dying in St. John's Hospital, Long Island City, from bullet wounds in the abdomen, the result of a twist of fate that took him to the corner of Steinway and Vandewater Avenues at 8 o'clock last evening. Just as Mrs. Joseph Calamango of No. 153 Vandewater Avenue happened along and volunteered a friendly word of information and her husband, who was recently released from an insane asylum, alighted from a street car.

Seeing his wife standing near Shreyer, Calamango, whose hallucination is that other men are trying to steal her, drew a revolver and ran shouting toward the pair, the police say. Mrs. Calamango fled. Shreyer, unsuspecting, stood his ground. Calamango fired twice, it is alleged. One bullet shattered a bone in Shreyer's right arm. The other penetrated his abdomen. He, too, ran and, pursued by Calamango, sought refuge in a hallway at No. 429 Steinway Avenue. There Shreyer fell and Calamango, standing over him, the police say, fired another bullet into his body. Charles Lederer, who owns a music store at the corner of Steinway and Vandewater Avenues, heard the shots and, grabbing a revolver from his cash drawer, followed Calamango and disarmed him. Thomas Butler, a private watchman, and Patrolman Edward Butler subdued and arrested the madman.

Shreyer, who was employed by the Consolidated Gas Company, never saw the Calamangos before. He bought an automobile recently, and last night went to a supply store at Steinway and Vandewater Avenues to purchase supplies. The store was closed, but lights were burning inside. Shreyer rattled the door, and as he did so Mrs. Calamango, bareheaded and on a neighborhood errand, came up and told him that the owner of the store had gone home to supper and would be back in a few minutes.

Calamango selected that moment for his descent from a street car on his way home from work in a shoe factory, in which he was employed as a foreman.

EXONERATE CHINESE ON NARCOTIC CHARGE

Chom Chu and His Wife Discharged by Judge.

Chom Chu, No. 11 Pell Street, a Chinese restaurant man, and his American wife, Babe, who were arrested April 2 by detectives of the Narcotic Squad on charges of possessing drugs, were discharged by Magistrate Simpson in the Centre Street Court today. Detective Frank Quigley said narcotics and pipes had been found in an apartment adjoining that of Chu and that Chu had the key.

At the time of the arrest reporters were told that $6,000 worth of opium had been seized. It is now said that the amount was small and that it probably belonged to a Chinese sailor who has not been found.

Sing Into Your Own
Phonograph: Then
Play Your Own Song

A recording record. Hosts of fun! All it takes is a megaphone. Not even that, if your voice is strong. Put on the record—which really isn't a "record" until you've sung into it. Start your phonograph—any phonograph—and sing or talk into the sound box... Now start it again, from the beginning—and hear yourself as others hear you! It's great! By singing into it two or three times you have a duet—a trio. Dozens of uses for the new recording record—besides just the fun of it. Send your voice by mail—instead of a written letter. The record can't break—it's metal.

We have the first thousand of them here now—and just to introduce them—
